About S'cool Moves:

S'cool Moves is a research-based program developed by a reading specialist and occupational therapist. S'cool Moves brings together the best practices in educational theory, brain integration, developmental movement, and self-regulation techniques. The activities strengthen visual, auditory, sensory, and postural systems of the body. These systems need to be fully functioning for focus control and academic success. An important S'cool Moves concept requires children to assume responsibility for their behavior. When children monitor their own behavior, teachers have more time to teach and children have more time to learn. These activities flow seamlessly into the school day. Simply add sensory-based techniques to what you already use in your daily routines. Rather than TELLING children to focus, teach them HOW to focus.

About Your Facilitators:

These two days will be facilitated by Amy Spence and Karla Brun, school-based occupational therapists from Dayton, Ohio, and Donna Rudolph, our very own Montana District Trainer who completed her certification with Debra Em Wilson last July. Your facilitators bring to their presentations humor and a wealth of knowledge combining therapy techniques with best teaching practices.
